Colonial Exhibition!

IN LONDON, ENGLAND, 1886.

Fifty-four Thousand Feet Reserved for Canada.

First Royal Exhibition Commission since 1862.

THE Colonial and Indian Exhibition to be held in London, England, commencing May 1st, 1886, is intended to be on a scale of great magnitude, having for object to mark an epoch in the relations of all the parts of the British Empire with each other.

In order to give becoming significance to the event a Royal Commission is issued for the holding of this Exhibition, for the first time since 1862, and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has been appointed President by Her Majesty.

The very large space of 54,000 square feet has been allotted to the Dominion of Canada by command of the President, His Royal Highness.

This Exhibition is, to be purely Colonial and Indian, and no competition from the United Kingdom or from foreign nations will be permitted, the object being to exhibit to the world at large what the Colonies can do.

The grandest opportunity ever offered to Canada is thus afforded to show the distinguished place she occupies, by the progress she has made in AGRICULTURE, in HORTICULTURE, in the INVESTMENT and FINE ARTS, in the MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES, in the NEWEST IMPROVEMENTS IN MANUFACTURING MACHINERY and IMPLEMENTS, in PUBLIC WORKS by MODELS and DESIGNS; also in an adequate display of her vast resources in the FISHERIES, and in FOREST and MINERAL wealth, and also in SHIPPING.

All Canadians of all parties and classes are invited to come forward and vie with each other in endeavoring on this great occasion to put Canada in her true place as the premier colony of the British Empire, and to establish her proper position before the world.

Every farmer, every producer, and every manufacturer, has interest in assisting, it having been already demonstrated that extension of trade always follows such efforts.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Schools and School Trustees.

To THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—You are receiving the thanks of a very large majority of the people for looking into the schools and School Trustee question, for certainly the department is in a greater muddle than ever before. It would appear that when John Robson brought in his new school bill he intended to create himself school king, and he is now acknowledged to be the CENTRE PIN, and wherever he is, you will find craftiness, deception and intrigue. How about that letter written over the name of "Lillooet?" Is it not strange that neither the Superintendent nor the Provincial Secretary, (through his mouthpiece, the Colonist), have answered it? What are the Clinton School Trustees about that they do not contradict the statement if it is untrue? There must be a terrible screw loose somewhere. It is about time this rottenness and corruption was done away with; but I am afraid it will last as long as Robson can hoodwink the people into electing him.

HOOKER ON.

The Lillooet Road Superintendent.

GRAVE CREEK, Sept. 15.

To THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

SIR:—I have calmly looked over the letter written by "One Who Knows," and have consulted my friends, and have come to the conclusion that the letter is of too serious a nature to allow it to go to the people as truth, and I am determined to bring the case before the court, and have this day placed the matter in the hands of my attorney, who is instructed to call upon you for the name of the writer, and I am sure you will at once see the propriety of complying with my request. I am surprised the government has not caused some inquiry to be made in this matter, because it is one that concerns it more than myself, for if Collins was paid by the late superintendent for time he did not work, it is at once a fraud. If a plow, barrow and cooking utensil were given away by the superintendent, that is also a fraud. EDWARD ALLEN.

Superintendent of Education.

To THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—Have we, it may be well asked, such an individual as a Superintendent of Education? Judging from the very prominent manner in which the Trustees figure at their monthly meetings it might be inferred there was no such official, and that the Trustees had taken his place, inasmuch as duties that pertain to him exclusively are taken in hand by them, the position of Superintendent being apparently ignored. To my way of thinking, there is far too much of Trustee operations in the management of the public schools of our city, and too little of that of the Superintendent of Education. What, I ask, is a Superintendent for but to have charge of the teachers entrusted with the education of the children, to give them general instructions, and to attend to the requirements arising therefrom? But judging from the monthly reports of the meetings of the Trustees, it would seem as if they considered it part of their duty to see to these matters. If such mistaken conception of duty be persisted in, I opine, there will soon be illustrated in a very objectionable form the truth of an old saying, that "too many cooks spoil the broth." The duties of Trustees, rightly considered, are mainly of a business character, such for instance as being custodians of the school property, and of the funds placed in their hands for school purposes, and of the proper disbursement of the same, combined with paying attention to the place being kept in good order. But from there not being experts in educational matters it is no part of their duties to be meddling, and interfering with that which belongs to the Superintendent.

PUBLICOLA.

What Bonanza Mackay Wants.

Chicago Times Washington special: It is reported that the recent rumor that "Bonanza" Mackay intended to buy the New York Herald grew out of the fact that he has senatorial ambitions. Mr. Mackay is in Washington at present, stopping at Welcker's with his lawyer, Mr. Wood, of San Francisco, who travels with him, and his presence here is made the occasion of much gossip. The report of his desire to succeed Senator Jim Fair, his old partner, is not the least interesting part of the talk about him. As the story is told, Mrs. Mackay is the mainspring of his political aspirations. It is said that she wants her husband to be a senator, and that he has obligingly consented to satisfy her wishes. The gossips say Mackay's candidacy is regarded much as a settled affair, and that the electors of the state of Nevada are already reckoning what their votes will be worth when the two millionaires, Mackay and Fair, come into competition at the next election. Mackay at present is said to be more popular of the two men in the state, but when election time comes around of course popularity will have its price. There are not more than about twelve thousand votes in the state, and $1,000,000 spent in buying a majority would make every vote worth from $150 to $200, which is about the present valuation. Mackay is supposed to be worth over $50,000,000. Fair's wealth comes up pretty close to these figures, and it is expected that competition will be keen and prices high at the next election for the State Legislature, which will elect Fair's successor to the United States Senate. Mr. Mackay is silent on the subject, but it is declared that his main object in visiting Washington at present is to purchase a site whereon to build a palace that will dwarf the most magnificent residence in the capital. Mrs. Mackay, it is said, longs to dazzle the American capital with some of the splendid receptions which have astonished Paris during her residence there. She cannot be the wife of a French Senator, but she may be the wife of the millionaire Senator from Nevada, and save Washington from the social blight of dull Democratic economy.

Gladstone's Voice.

A London cable says: Gladstone circles are informed that he will not speak in the campaign until October. The condition of his voice at present is not favorable, but promises well for a few addresses just before the election. The spirits of the Liberals are greatly strengthened by this assurance, and they confidently look for victory.

Dilke Considered Innocent.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—It is considered at the clubs a noteworthy proof of there being no truth in the charge brought against Sir Charles Dilke in the divorce court that the father of the accused lady, Eustace Smith, M. P., is much seen with the baronet.

A CABLE LETTER.

Gladstone, the Most Powerful Man in the Civilized World.

His Recent Pamphlet Unites the Liberal Party, as if by Magic.

He Demands Complete Submisson as the Price of His Leadership.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Gladstone's manifesto, the most Delphic utterance he ever made, has proven the most successful pamphleteering of his life. The document was secretly issued to his political colleagues as early as last Monday; its first perceptible effect was a palpable rhapsodiment between Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, Lord Hartington and Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt. These most powerful leaders are next to the ex-Premier himself in the Liberal party. All these are ambitious men and they had been pulling apart. Each was taking a large following along. The Radicals were going with Chamberlain; the Whigs with Hartington, and Harcourt was endeavoring to hold the Moderates together. The Liberal party was being rent to pieces. The manifesto put a stop to the ripping, and the diverging triumvirate at once set to work to replace the stitches, and with each effort came closer together. To-day, a week only having elapsed, the Liberal party, in Great Britain at least, is a solid unit. Chamberlain may be said to be the most rebellious leader in the whole Liberal party. Before Mr. Gladstone's utterance,

CHAMBERLAIN'S RADICAL CAMPAIGN

tour included the city of Glasgow, where no doubt was entertained that he would repeat his pronounced independence, but the orator spoke in Glasgow after he had perused the manifesto, and his speech displayed a practical abandonment of his independent radicalism, and adoption of the policy of opportunism, and so it has been with Lord Hartington and Sir William Vernon Harcourt. They have also indicated complete submission to Gladstone, and have been opportunists. There are two explanations to these remarkable submissions. No one doubts that if these three leaders had followed the course they had mapped out for themselves, the Liberal party would have been dismembered. It was pretty generally thought that Gladstone was tired of public life, and had decided to remain out of it. He was implored to reconsider this determination, and assume management of the present campaign, for the party's success in this campaign was essential to the continued existence of the Liberal party as a party, and absolute unity was the requisite of success. Mr. Gladstone demanded submission as the price of his leadership. It is, of course, possible to suppose that Chamberlain, Hartington and Harcourt consented to drop their differences out of pure desire to accomplish the success of their party as a whole, and to obtain this result pay Mr. Gladstone's price, but no doubt can be entertained that each one of those three men has been ambitious to succeed the

GRAND OLD MAN IN THE LEADERSHIP.

Circumstances have demonstrated that the party will at present accept no leader but him, and that without him restoration to power is impossible. The supposition is that Mr. Gladstone has consented to lead his party back to power, and is determined after its lodgment there to retire permanently. This would afford a most reasonable explanation of the conduct of the three submissive leaders, for in this case they would be playing for a stake worth their while. In this latter event the leadership to attain would be that of a united party, adhesive with power, a thing immensely different from factional success. Many things go to show that the latter supposition is the correct explanation of the turn affairs have taken. In the opening sentences of his manifesto Gladstone uses the following significant statement: "It will not be possible for me to appear in the new parliament after the first session." This is accepted as a distinct assertion by Mr. Gladstone that he intends, if victorious, to confine himself to the work of forming a ministry, and after remaining in office long enough to assure the successful working of his established governmental machinery to retire permanently to private life.

It is everywhere apparent that the ex-Premier's effort has secured a marvelous and instantaneous restoration of

and has given it fighting trim. It is thoroughly revivified. Its political agents in the country already report better prospects, and the obliteration of dissension and consolidation on single candidates. It is also rumored that the powers of the local caucus are being revived and that they are resuming the work of the election of candidates and organizing for the canvass.

The Tory press criticises Mr. Gladstone's address as "perplexing, ambiguous, halting, one of the most insecurate political documents ever issued to the public and a mere travesty of home and foreign affairs." Even the Liberal journals admit that the manifesto is vague and diffuse, but that it has been extraordinarily effective, and that result undoubtedly was what Mr. Gladstone desired, and the very vagueness and diffusiveness which characterized the document have this merit, that they permit each section of the Liberal party to interpret the address favorably according to factional inclination and disarm the Conservatives of cogent criticism. An extreme Radical newspaper, the Dispatch, commenting on the address, says that it prefers at present the

to that of Chamberlain. "He may not be as Radical as we wish," says the Dispatch, "but Radicalism loses nothing by biding its time." The Moderate Spectator declares that the result of the manifesto will be to enable the Liberal party to march forward like a wall.

Perhaps the most remarkable proof of the power of the manifesto is that afforded by the bourses which deal especially in Egyptian, Turkish and Russian securities. In these markets Egyptian stocks fell 1½ points, and Turkish and Russian securities fell ¾ points almost immediately after the publication of the tenor of the document. The speculators whose sales brought about these declines explain that the situation created by the manifesto is one of a probable return of Gladstone to office, which they say means a British evacuation of Egypt and an uncertain foreign policy on the part of England. This extraordinary taking of time by the foreclock would appear to establish the fact that Mr. Gladstone is the most powerful man in the world.

JUMBO'S DEATH.

He Sacrifices His Life in an Attempt to Save a Baby Elephant.

BUFFALO, Sept. 18.—R. Haight, representing Barnum, arrived here yesterday. He gives the following particulars of the death of the elephant Jumbo, at St. Thomas, Ontario. After the show the driver started down the track with Jumbo and the baby elephant Tom Thumb, to where a Grand Trunk freight train was standing. There are a great many tracks at that point, used in switching cars on the Grand Trunk Air Line, which there joins the main road. On one side of the track was a train, and on the other a steep embankment. As the train came round a curve the keeper tried to induce Jumbo to go down the embankment, but he would not. The reason at first was not apparent. The baby elephant was in the rear, and as the train approached Jumbo began to bellow and swing his trunk. The little elephant seemed dazed, but did not get out of the way. As the engine was almost upon them Jumbo raised on his hind legs, as though to protect the baby, and then quick as thought dropped down and grabbed him in his trunk and hurled him with great force over all the tracks and against a freight car twenty rods away, where he dropped down, whining like a puppy with a sore foot.

Jumbo, in saving his protege, entirely neglected his own chance to escape. The locomotive struck him with full force in the side, crowding him against some cars on the siding nearest him and fairly squeezing the life out of him.

When they came to the end of the switch the engine left the track with five freight cars that stood on the siding. Then there was a scene never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it. The mangled beast roared with pain, and the little elephant roared as loudly as he could, in sympathy. The crush was too heavy to leave any chance of recovery, and the bystanders could only wait for Jumbo's death. It was not long delayed. In three minutes he turned over on his back, dead. It was found that the baby elephant had sustained a broken leg, and as there was no help for him orders were given that he be put out of his misery, which order was carried into effect yesterday afternoon.

THE DAIRY.

Valuable Hints on Butter Making Worthy the Consideration of Farmers.

In his notes from the Ontario Experimental Farm butter dairy, Prof. Brown in his semi-annual report, just published says: "The factory is being supplied inside a radius of 8 miles, by 7 routes, averaging 25 miles out and in, hauling daily with single horse, except two, which have teams. Two hundred patrons give cream from 900 cows, by setting 12 and 24 hours in cans 20x8½, at a temperature not exceeding 50 deg. in tanks with spring water or ice. Skimming is done by teamsters with covered spring wagons, who receive $2 for single horse, and $3 for a team, per day; gathering cans of 20 and 30 gallon sizes as required. On arrival, cream is put in vats to cool and ripen, then churned at a temperature of 58 degrees in plain box churns, 200 and 300 gallons, revolving 56 time per minute, and averaging 60 minutes to make butter. Butter is washed in churn without handling, with ice-cooled water before and after removal of buttermilk, then passed through hand worker before finishing with machine worker, when ½ oz. of salt per pound is allowed. Packing in hand-made white ash and oak tubs (soaked in brine) of 56 and 28 lb. sizes. The two inches of cream on gauge has averaged 1.96 lbs. of butter during May and June—ranging from 1.66 to 2.11 lbs. The return of butter per cow has been ⅞ lbs per day on an average, requiring 4 lbs. of cream to make one pound, and ⅔ gallon of buttermilk is obtained with every such pound. Buttermilk is sold for 3 cents per gallon at factory, and is being retailed in cities at 10 cents. The average daily make began with 150 lbs. on 18th May, and is now 790 lbs. I handed over this department to Professor Barre in June.

Rich Silver Mines.

EL PASO, Sept. 19.—Reports of the vast silver deposits in the Sabinal Mountains, 100 miles southeast of here, in the State of Chihuahua, is confirmed. A large number of miners from New Mexico and some from Arizona are hurrying through here to the spot. The mines are the property of Mexicans, who are asking a fabulous price for a part interest. The Sabinal Mountains are a part of the Sierra Nevada range.

Huge Iron Works.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The corner stone of the Union Foundry, which when completed, will be the greatest iron works in the United States, was laid this morning. Peter Donahue is the principal stockholder in the concern. The opening address was made by W. T. Garratt. The building will cover the ground formerly occupied by the Union Iron Works, and will cost four hundred thousand dollars.

A Comment.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The Times to-day commenting on Mr. Gladstone's manifesto, says the important fact for the moment, whatever dissension may occur about the doubts of the document, is that Jos. Chamberlain and Geo. Goschen appeared willing, for the sake of harmony among the Liberals, to take refuge under Mr. Gladstone's umbrella.

Riel's Friends at Work.

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—Riel's counsel leave to-day for England. The Montreal committee will issue a manifesto to French speaking people, appealing for aid.

The ladies of the Methodist congregation are engaged in preparing a bazaar in aid of the new church and any assistance will be gratefully received by the following ladies: Mrs. D. Spencer, Mrs. Shakespeare, Mrs. Darkenbohr and Mrs. Grant.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

VICE-PRESIDENT HENDRICK'S speech at Indianapolis, as cabled to Britain, has created a stir throughout that country, for it came at a time when the British mind was more than usually excited over Parnell.

"HIGH muckamuc," the Chicago Inter-Ocean explains, in a lengthy editorial, is a phrase that has been adopted in the west as an opprobrious epithet to be applied to an official held by the speaker in contempt, and should never be used in the plural form.

THE PRINCE OF WALES, it is estimated, is entitled to wear seventy different uniforms. He has a right to seventeen different military uniforms alone, and special costumes without number associated with his various titles and offices. And he actually does wear them as occasion arises, but not all at once.

THE Toronto News has been sued for libelling a Montreal regiment. The case was tried in Montreal. The Toronto World, which has never sympathized with the News in its attack upon the 65th Regiment referring to MR. SHEPPARD's application for a change of venue, says: "The law which permits a citizen of one province to be dragged into another province will not be permitted to remain on the statute book now that its obsolete and tyrannical character is known."

MR. CHAMBERLAIN, the Radical leader, has just denounced PARNELL'S demand for the repeal of the union in terms of scathing rebuke. It is thought peculiarly insulting for the vice president of the United States to denounce England for bad government in Ireland and to wish PARNELL success in his effort to re-establish the Irish parliament and disrupt the United Kingdom. People attach great importance to such random utterances, and naturally conceive that the government of the United States is directly responsible for them.

NO SETTLEMENT has yet been effected in the large seizure made by the customs authorities of patent medicines imported into Canada by the well known firm of J. C. AYER & Co., of Lowell, Mass. The authorities claim that the revenue has been defrauded to the extent of $154,000 in three years' transactions alone, and in the meantime the goods seized, amounting to $108,000, are still held, pending the decision of the Minister of Customs. The firm has retained the services of a prominent young M. P. and Queen's Counsel, who has already had several interviews with the authorities at Ottawa, during which it is understood he offered $25,000 in settlement of the government's claim. This has been refused, the government claiming the full amount it has been defrauded of.

A NEW transalpine line, the St. Bernard Railway, is likely to be commenced before very long, and to be when completed, a dangerous competitor for the through traffic with the existing route of St. Gothard. One of the principal features of the new project is that the indispensable tunnel under the Alps—at the Col Ferret—will be much shorter than any other, either constructed or proposed to be constructed. The length will be only 9½ kilometers, (5¾ miles), while the St. Gothard tunnel is 15, (9¼ miles), the Mont Cenis 12, and those under the Simplon and Mont Blanc 20 and 19 kilometers respectively. The total length of the St. Bernard line will be but 138 kilometers, or 86 miles, making a saving between London and Brindisi over the St. Gothard route of 59½ miles.

THE London Labour News of August 26 reports the labor market unchanged. Disputes between employers and employed were still numerous. At Bolton and Wigan wages had been reduced and strikes were expected to follow. The weavers' strike at Oldham continued without any sign of a termination. Among colliers in the north there was fair activity, but in the South Wales coal-fields one of the largest collieries had been closed, and over 600 men rendered idle in consequence. The marine engineering and ship-building industries were fairly active, and railway-building particularly brisk. The building trade continues exceedingly active, some large jobs both in London and the country being in progress. In agricultural districts there was plenty of work in harvesting, and for fully-qualified men the farmers had to give a slight increase in wages.

CONFEDERATION STILL ON TRIAL.

GOLDWIN SMITH, at a meeting of the American Social Science Association, held in Saratoga, N. Y., on the 8th inst., delivered an able address on the political history of Canada. The British Empire, he said, was made up of different elements—India, the military dependencies, the Crown Colonies, and the self-governing Colonies. The self-governing Colonies were really independent nations, bound to the Mother Country only by a nominal tie, though the moral tie was still strong. Americans were hardly conscious of the recent extension of Canada and growth of her aspirations. The provinces before the insurrection of 1837, were ruled by Royal Governors, and Toryism prevailed in the Colonial government as in that of the Mother Country. The affair of 1837 was rather a petty civil war between Colonial parties than a rebellion against British government. It was followed by the concession of responsible government and by the union of the provinces, so that Canada was turned from a pair of vice-royalties into a single republic. This was done with the usual British avoidance of a change of form, merely by an alteration in the construction of the government. Great Britain was the land of constitutional fiction, and her fictions had led the world a strange dance.

Other reforms followed, particularly the disfranchisement of the State and Church. Party government also began. The struggle of factions at last produced a deadlock. To escape from that deadlock the statesmen had resource to a confederation of all the Provinces of British North America. The Trent affair also helped to fashion the Provinces into a confederation for mutual defence. The different elements of the constitution, those derived from the British Monarchy and those derived from American Federation, were described by British statesmen. Confederation was probably regarded as a stop to Independence. Had the American Colonies taken out their independence in a peaceful way British emigration would not have been diverted to Australia, and American politics would not have received the revolutionary poison afteward manifested in secession. More power was given to the Federal government in Canada than in the United States. The framers of the Canadian Constitution thought that secession was caused by want of power in the central government of the United States, whereas it was caused solely by slavery. The appointment of judges for life was a British feature in the constitution, and secured their perfect independence. They tried disputed elections to the general satisfaction. Party was for the first time formally recognized by the framers of the Canadian constitution. The question whatever party could continue to afford a fair basis for government was the political problem of the day. The break up of parties was seen in almost all European countries, and had begun even in the United States. The Governor-General in Canada had become a mere figurehead. The occupation of Canada by British troops had ceased, none remaining but the reduced garrison at Halifax. Commercial independence, and even diplomatic independence, so far as commercial treaties are concerned, had been practically conceded. The political tie, therefore, had become as slight as possible, but unchanged in strength was the tie of affection for the Mother country, from whom Canada has never received anything but kindness, and whose thousand years of history she proudly claims as her own. Canadian Confederation was still on trial, and had great difficulties, both geographical and political to contend with. A veil hung over the future. The speaker said he could not venture to discuss there any question connected with the internal relations of Canada, but might say when fear of American interference had been expressed on his side of the line, he had always told those who expressed them he had never had a single word of ill-will against Canada or a single desire to interfere with her in any way, and as far as any action of the American people was concerned her political destinies were absolutely in her own hands.

NOT AN AMERICAN.

If is now asserted that the American citizenship of GENERAL BOOTH, of the Salvation Army, on which he counted to protect him from the discourse of the English law, is denied by Americans here who know the facts, and he is regarded as a pretender and impostor. He is, it is said, a citizen of the United States neither by birth nor by naturalization. He has, it is stated, marched under false colors in all matters in which his citizenship might be called in question. He has purchased lands in several of the states in the names of lieutenants of the Salvation Army who are citizens, and who hold the lands in BOOTH'S behalf. Some months since, under the pretense, it is alleged, that he desired to assure the ownership of the lands to the Salvation Army, he proposed that the American officers of the army in whose names the lands had been obtained, should convey them to himself BOOTH signing a formal declaration that he was merely a trustee holding the lands for the exclusive benefit of the Salvation Army. Before signing such declaration BOOTH consulted several American lawyers on the matter, seeking to learn from them whether, not being a citizen of the United States, as he then acknowledged, he could hold the properties afterward. The same declarations of trust were effected with regard to the English properties which had been acquired by the army in this country. These declarations have no value whatever for the Salvation Army and the transactions gave BOOTH personally absolute disposal of all the possessions supposed to belong to the organization. It is now estimated that the American lands amount in value to £500,000 sterling.

OUR SENATORS.

SENATOR MCINNES is about transferring his domiciliary habitation from New Westminster, in British Columbia, to Toronto in Ontario. There will thus be a convenient distance of about three thousand miles between the people and the representative, which may at times be found extremely pleasant to the honorable senator. SENATOR MCDONALD is in England, hob-nobbing with royalty, and, if report speaks with truth, practising the new style of etiquette to be introduced at Carey Castle. As a general principle it might be inconvenient at times to insist on a residential qualification for senators and commoners, but there is no question that it is in the interest of the constituency and the constituents that the man honored by both should have "a local habitation and a name." Only three senators in all British Columbia, and two of that number have already expatriated themselves, "it may be for years and it may be forever!" The inference is that British Columbia is an unfit place to live in—for a Senator! Its social life is too narrow and plebeian—the place is too remote from the centers of civilization and refinement—for the man who has made his pile and secured a fat position, with the title of "hon." and a thousand a year for life. This is not as it should be. It is a libel upon our province and an insult to our people. The men who represent our interests in the Parliament of the Dominion should reside in the province, if for no other reason than to study the wants and requirements of the people. If they won't do that they should resign. They have a right, if they wish, to live in Toronto, or London, or Timbuctoo; but they have no right to retain a position their nonresidence disqualifies them from filling acceptably to the residents.

THE Spanish-German difficulty, about the Carolines has passed through a very critital phase during the week. Popular excitement in Madrid over a report of the German occupation of Yap, one of the islands culminated in an attack upon the German embassy. The feeling of the people at the capital reached such a pitch that it was judged proper to put the embassy under a guard and to assign an escort to the German minister. The conduct of the Spanish authorities seem to have weakened monarchy in popular estimation, and during the week the King's tenure of his throne has not been entirely secure. A pressing personal appeal from Alfonso has, however, touched the sympathies of the German Emperor, who has written to Alfonso declaring his intention not to intrench on Spanish rights or to prejudice the position of the Spanish King, and affirming his readiness to withdraw from Yap and to admit Spanish sovereignty over the islands provided it be made effective. This outgiving of the Emperor would seem to foreshadow a peaceable settlement of the dispute, though it is known that PRINCE BISMARCK adheres to the principle on which the commanders of the gunboats acted.

MR. PARNELL is as bumptious as ever. He himself can hardly believe that his demand for repeal can be gratified. What he aims at is to startle both parties by the magnitude of his demands and get further concessions in the direction of local management of Irish affairs. He justly protests against the imposition of 30,000 soldiers upon Ireland, and as half of them were placed there under the GLADSTONE administration, which was more coercive than the Tory administration which preceded it, he has rung the changes on militarism and mutiny acts and all that kind of procedure with considerable effect, both upon Liberals and Tories. He knows that LORD HARTINGTON'S call for a combination of all parties against the Irish Nationalists is futile, for he has got both parties where he can use them. Repeal he will not get, for as SIR ROBERT PEEL said, fifty years ago, a separate and independent parliament for Ireland is simply a "physical impossibility," for the simple reason, if for no other, that Ireland has neither army nor navy nor ordnance stores, and the English grip on the island is strong with steel and iron.

THE report comes from Russia that the Czar is about to promulgate a constitution. It is intimated that this important step would have been taken last year but for the difficulties with England in regard to the Afghan boundary. The statement has even been made by some who profess to be informed that the Asiatic question was precipitated in its most recent phase by opponents of the proposed reform. Considering the personal relations of the Czar to his people it is not at all singular that he should endeavor to conciliate them by a measure such as that proposed, though such action on his part would mark a step in advance for which the world has not been quite prepared. To those however, who recall the great emancipation act issued by the present Czar's father in 1861, there should be no cause for astonishment in the fact that the crown should take the further step indicated in the endeavor to strengthen itself with the people. Nothing is known as yet as to the scope of the proposed constitution, and any opinion as to its possible effect would be premature.

Emperor Francis Joseph has given audience to a deputation of 467 prominent Bosnians and Herzegovinians. Replying to their addresses of loyalty, he promised to protect them in the free exercise of all religious creeds and the enjoyment of their rights, and said that he intended as soon as possible to visit their country.

It was expected that the appliances for taking a supply of salmon ova for the river hatchery would go up to Harrison river to-day. The hatchery will probably turn out four or five million young fry next spring.

Try Ayer's Pills, and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the mischief to body and mind, caused by habitual constipation. The regular use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills, in mild doses, will restore the torpid viscera to healthy action.

IN LUCK AT LAST

BY WALTER BESANT.

"Counting his investments again as usual," Mr. James murmured. "Ah, and adding 'em up! Always at it. Oh, what a trade it must have been once!"

Just then there appeared in the door a gentleman. He was quite shabby, and even ragged in his dress, but he was clearly a gentleman. He was no longer young; his shoulders were bent, and he had the unmistakable stamp and carriage of a student.

"Guy'nor's at home," said the assistant briefly.

The visitor walked into the sanctum. He had under his arm half-a-dozen volumes, which, without a word, he laid before Mr. Emblem, and untied the string.

"You ought to know this book," he said without further introduction.

Mr. Emblem looked doubtfully at the visitor.

"You sold it to me twenty-five years ago," he went on, "for five pounds."

"I did. And I remember now. You are Mr. Frank Farrar. Why, it is twenty-five years ago!"

"I have bought no more books for twenty years and more," he replied.

"Sad—sad! Dear me—tut, tut!—bought no books! And you, Mr. Farrar, once my best customer. And now—you do not mean to say that you are going to sell—that you actually want to sell—this precious book?"

"I am selling, one by one, all my books," replied the other with a sigh. "I am going downhill, Emblem, fast."

"Oh, dear, dear, dear!" replied the bookseller. "This is very sad. One cannot bear to think of the libraries being dispersed and sold off. And now yours, Mr. Farrar! Really, yours! Must it be?"

"'Needs must,'" Mr. Farrar said with a sickly smile, "needs must when the devil drives. I have parted with half my books already. But I thought you might like to have this set, because they were once your own."

"So I should"—Mr. Emblem laid a loving hand upon the volumes—"so I should, Mr. Farrar, but not from you; not from you, sir. Why, you were almost my best customer—I think almost my very best—thirty years ago, when my trade was better than it is now. Yes, you gave me five pounds—or was it five pounds ten?—for this very work. And it is worth twelve pounds now—I assure you it is worth twelve pounds, if it is worth a penny."

"Will you give me ten pounds for it, then?" cried the other eagerly; "I want the money badly."

"No, I can't; but I will send you to a man who can and will. I do not speculate now; I never go to auctions. I am old, you see. Besides, I am poor. I will not buy your book, but I will send you to a man who will give you ten pounds for it, I am sure, and then he will sell it for fifteen." He wrote the address on a slip of paper. "Why, Mr. Farrar, if an old friend, so to speak, can put the question, why in the world—"

"The most natural thing," replied Mr. Farrar with a cold laugh; "I am poor, as I told you, and the younger men get all the work. That is all. Nobody wants a genealogist and antiquary."

"Dear me, dear me! Why, Mr. Farrar, I remember now; you used to know my poor son-in-law, who is dead eighteen years since. I was just reading the last letter he ever wrote me, just before he died. You used to come here and sit with him in the evening. I remember now. So you did.

"Thank you for your good will," said Mr. Farrar. "Yes, I remember your son-in-law. I knew him before his marriage."

"Did you? Before his marriage? Then—" He was going to add, "Then you can tell me his real name," but he paused, because it is a pity ever to acknowledge ignorance, and especially ignorance in such elementary matters as your son-in-law's name.

So Mr. Emblem checked himself.

"He ought to have been a rich man," Mr. Farrar continued; "but he quarrelled with his father, who cut him off with a shilling, I suppose."

Then the poor scholar, who could find no market for his learned papers, tied up his books again and went away with hanging head.

"Ugh!" Mr. James, who had been listening, groaned as Mr. Farrar passed through the door. "Ugh! Call that a way of doing business! Why, if it had been me, I'd have bought the book off of the old chap for a couple o' pounds, I would. Aye, or a sov, so needy he is, and wants money so bad. And I know who'd have given twelve pound for it, in the trade, too. Call that carrying on business! He may well add up his investments every day, if he can afford to chuck such chances. Ah, but he'll retire soon." His fiery eyes brightened, and his face glowed with the joy of anticipation. "He must retire before long."

There came another visitor. This time it was a lanky boy, with a blue bag over his shoulder and a notebook and pencil-stump in his hand. He nodded to the assistant as to an old friend with whom one may be at ease, set down his bag, opened his notebook, and nibbled his stump. Then he read aloud, with a comma or semicolon between each, a dozen or twenty titles. They were the names of the books which his employer wished to pick up. The relieved assistant listened, and shook his head. Then the boy, without another word, shouldered his bag and departed on his way to the next second-hand book shop.

He was followed, at a decent interval, by another caller. This time it was an old gentleman who opened the door, put in his head, and looked about him with quick and suspicious glance. At sight of the assistant he nodded and smiled in the most friendly way possible, and came in.

"Good morning, Mr. James; good morning, my friend. Splendid weather. Pray don't disturb yourself. I am just having a look round—only a look round, you know. Don't move, Mr. James."

He addressed Mr. James, but he was looking at the shelves as he spoke, and, with the habit of a book-hunter, taking down the volumes, looking at the title-pages and replacing them; under his arm he carried a single volume in old leath er binding.

Mr. James nodded his head, but did disturb himself in fact, he rose with a sigh upon his face, and followed this polite old gentleman all round the shop, placing himself at his elbow. One might almost suppose that he suspected him, so close and assiduous was his attendance. But the visitor, examining every volume as they were customary, and the result of high breeding, went slowly round the shelves, taking down book after book, but buying none. Presently he smiled again, and said that he must be moving on, and very politely thanked Mr. James for his kindness.

"Nowhere," he was so good as to say, "does one get so much personal kindness and attention as at Emblem's. Good morning, Mr. James; good morning, my friend."

Mr. James grunted, and closed the door after him.

"Ugh!" he said with disgust, "I know you; I know your tricks. Want to make your set complete—eh! Want to sneak one of our books to do it with, don't you? Ah!" He looked into the bookshop before he returned to his paste and his slips. "That was Mr. Potts, the great Queen Anne collector, sir. Most accurious book-snicher in all London, and the most barefaced. Wanted our fourth volume of the Athenian Oracle. I saw his eyes reached out this way, and that way, and always resting on that volume. I saw him edging along to the shelf. Got another old curiosity jack-ass in his wicket and hand, ready to change when I wasn't lookin."

"Ah," said Mr. Emblem, waking up from his dream of Iris and her father's letter; "Ah, they will try it on. Keep your eyes open, James."

"No thanks, as usual," grumbled Mr. James as he returned to his gum and his scissors. "Might as well have left him to snatch the book."

Here, however, James was wrong, because it is the first duty of an assistant to hinder and obstruct the book-snatcher, who carries on his work by methods of crafty and fraudulent exchange rather than by plain theft, which is a mere brutal way. For, first, the book-snatcher marks his prey; he finds the shop which has a set containing the volume which is missing in his own set; next, he arms himself with a volume which closely resembles the one he covets, and then, on pretence of turning over the leaves, he watches his opportunity to effect an exchange, and goes away rejoicing, his set complete. No collector, as is very well known, whether of books, coins, pictures, medals, fans, scarabs, book-plates, autographs, stamps, or anything else, has any conscience at all. Anybody can cut out slips and make a catalogue, but it requires a sharp assistant, with eyes all over his head like a spider, to be always on guard against this felonious and unscrupulous collector.

GOLD JEWELRY.

TRICKS OF THE TRADE BY WHICH BUYERS ARE DECEIVED.

Articles Produced for "Working the Pawnbrokers"—The "Filled" Method Brought to Bear on Heavier Goods—Other Deceptions.

[Chicago Tribune.]

"The methods of imposition in the manufacture of gold jewelry," said the old jobber to a reporter, "are endless and vary according to the style in vogue. Broadly it may be said that there is more chance for fraud and imposition in heavy-weight goods than in light. There is a certain class of manufacturers at work all the time producing goods for working the pawnbrokers. In New York, Philadelphia and other large northern and eastern cities the circulation of these goods is much greater than in Chicago, as the pawnbroking business here is of a much less rushing description. Sometimes pawnbrokers buy quantities of these goods in bulk, but as a rule they are pledged in single pieces at busy hours. The pawnbroker, whether he discovers the imposition or not, does not eventually lose. If the stuff is good enough to impose upon him, no layman can distinguish it from the honestly made article, and he disposes of it out of his window or at auction at the full rate.

"No article, large or small, escapes the attention of these bogus manufacturers, but chains, lockets, pendants, and rings are the great specialties. The whole production may be roughly divided into three classes—the 'filled,' 'edged,' and 'mixed.' The 'filled' method is generally brought to bear on the heavier goods. From 1875 to 1883, when heavy chains of cable and bar pattern were worn by both sexes, about 25 per cent. of all those made were more or less logus. These chains were made by the usual filled process—that is, a thin plate of gold was welded to the base substratum before the chains were fashioned. In one link—the marked one—the bar and swivel were almost always made solid. After finishing they were thickly electrotyped and burnished to make them of a uniform color. They were then 'sweated,' two or three dozen being shaken up for an hour or two in a large chamois leather bag. This rounded off the sharp angles, and gave them the appearance of having been worn for years. There was no loss of gold in the operation, as the leather bags were afterward burnt in a furnace and every particle recovered by the mercury amalgam process.

"In locket and pendants imposition is very common, as it is much more difficult to discover in these goods. Not only pawnbrokers are overrun with them, but the most respectable storekeepers often sell them for the genuine article without any guilty knowledge. As the interior of these goods is either soldered fast or hidden by the glasses and framework it is unusual to examine the back. Even if the backs are examined, as in well-made goods they have a tolerably thick gold plate. From their shape they can not be filed and it is very difficult to lay open the fraud. Of course, when a jobber in buying a large quantity has any suspicion he resorts to boring the sample, but it is very unusual, as it utterly ruins the piece acted upon. It is certain that 50 per cent. of all the lockets and pendants sold as solid gold are of this description, and among them some of the finest and most massive-looking specimens. This method is also much in use in the manufacture of so-called gold pencil-cases and penholders.

"There are two or three firms which manufacture large quantities of sleeve and collar buttons and ladies' sleeve-links on this principle. The edge system is brought into requisition for a different class of articles. In all light-weight goods such as fancy stone rings, plain and band rings from three and one-half to six pennyweights in weight, earrings, brooches, sets, lace-pins, garter and suspender buckles, scarf-rings, small watch-chain charms, chatelaine-chain pendants, and in all articles of a light description this principle is worked to advantage. It is much more prevalent than the 'filled' system at present. The greater portion of these goods are made for unscrupulous jobbing houses and generally sold to country storekeepers and auctioneers.

"The last main division in these goods is the 'mixed.' This system of imposition is less sweeping and profitable than the two others. All classes of goods, both heavy and light weight, are made up in this way. The whole thing consists of making different portions of the same article of greatly varying qualities of gold and selling the whole piece at the trade price of the finest part. In chains, for instance, two or three of the links usually tested are made of 14 or 18 carat. The other links are composed of gold from 6 to to 8 carat. The whole chain is then sold for 14 or 18 carat, and as the inferior gold is silver alloyed, and the better mixed with baser metal, the whole chain wears uniform and of one color for years.

"These three main lines almost cover the whole ground, though there are many combinations of the different systems and new dodges are continually coming forward."

George Eliot's Favorite Room.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

A very pretty little personal paragraph is going the rounds to the effect that George Eliot's favorite room in a house was a clean kitchen. This is worth knowing and emphasizing. Not that anybody will be surprised at her preference, but because the knowledge may give the clean kitchen a boom.

There is no doubt in the world that a thoroughly clean kitchen is one of the healthiest and most cheery places to be found. Every house ought to be clean from cellar to roof, but the kitchen ought to be particularly clean. It is the place where the food that is to maintain the human body and to evolve itself into human ideas is prepared, and from which it is served. Any dust or cobwebs or vile odors about the kitchen are sure to get into the food, and so help to poison the human victims fed thereby. But the breath of the kitchen fire and of healthy cooking are as invigorating as anything short of an ocean breeze.

People who have made a study of human faces know very well that the George Eliot type of face means cleanliness and good housekeeping wherever women are found. Perhaps this gift, or combination of gifts, resulting in thorough character and thorough cleanliness, is as much a gift of nature as the gifts of poetic genius it did.

Americans projected, built and now control the street railroads of Moscow.

THE BEST ROUTE AND

SHORT LINE

BETWEEN

Omaha, Council Bluffs & Chicago.

This only line for Des Moines, Marshalltown, Cedar Rapids, Clinton, Diana, Chicago, Milwaukee, and all points East. To the people of Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and California, it offers superior advantages not possible by any other line.

Among a few of the numerous points of superiority enjoyed by the patrons of this road between Omaha and Chicago, are its two trains a day of DAY COACHES, which are the finest that human art and ingenuity can create; its PALACE SLEEPING CARS, which are models of comfort and elegance; its PARLOR DRAWING ROOM CARS, the equal of which cannot be found elsewhere; its DINING CARS, the equal of which cannot be found elsewhere; its MAGNIFICENT PALATIAL DINING CARS, the equal of which cannot be found elsewhere.

At Council Bluffs the trains of the Union Pacific Ry. connect in Union Depot with those of the Chicago & North-Western Ry. In Chicago the trains of this line make close connections with those of all Eastern lines.

For Detroit, Columbus, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and points in the East, ask the Ticket Agent for tickets via the

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

While the TIMES is always prepared to give publicity to the views of correspondents on any question of interest to the public, provided facts are given, couched in unobjectionable language, we wish it to be understood that we do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by the writers thereof.

Nor can we give room to duplicates of letters that have appeared in our contemporaries either in this city or elsewhere in the province. Correspondents, therefore, will save time and trouble in preparing such for THE TIMES, as they will be rejected.

Our space is valuable, and brevity, as far as possible, should be observed in writing on any topic, and on ONE SIDE of the sheet only.

—To-day is about the time of the autumn equinox, when the great circle which the sun appears to describe in the heavens crosses the equator. The earth has now exactly one-half of its surface illuminated by the sun's rays, whilst the other half remains in darkness, and the phenomenon of equal day and night all over the world is produced.

—The Geo. E. Starr brought freight for A Ofner, A B Gray & Co, C G Major, C Strauss & Co, D McPherson, D Spencer, E B Marvin, G H Maynard, Henderson Bros, H Young & Co, J Wilson, J B Lovell, J Scott, J Parker, Marvin & Tilton, Powers Bros, B Lettice, Turner B & Co, W Dalby, W Turpel, W Feathero, W Wilson, A Neppach.

—The illustration in the last number of the St. Louis Photographer, a journal published specially in the interests of photographers, is a picture of 1830 babies taken by Mrs. R. Maynard of this city. In the short article referring to the illustration this lady is highly praised for the excellence of her work and the artistic effect which she produces. The publication of this picture in this widely circulated magazine is a tribute to the ability of one of our leading photographers and a splendid advertisement for our city.

THE EFFINGHAM HORROR.

Details of the Brutal Murder of Alexander Easterbee's Wife.

At the adjourned inquest on the body of Leafey, wife of Alexander Easterbee in Welland, Ont., before Coroner Curâmius, after a great deal of irrelevant testimony had been taken, Howard Easterbee said the prisoner told him he helped to bury Lehfey; that he held his hand over her mouth to keep her from hollowing while Alexander hit her in the pit of the stomach. Alex. then wrapped her up in a quilt, threw her in a hole, and covered her up. John told him this about two weeks ago, and said if the witness told about it he would lay him beside Alexander. The prisoner told him that he and Alexander buried Leafey. The witness was living at home all the time. Last fall Alex. stayed one night at his father's. Prisoner told this to witness outside of their father's house and asked witness to help him move Alex.'s body but said he couldn't. It was about a week after prisoner choked witness that he told his parents of the affair and laid the information. His mother told him to lay the information. The witness usually slept with prisoner, and only recollected his being away from home one night. That was last fall. Witness heard prisoner threaten to shoot Harmon and cut his throat. This was when Harmon was away, and he did not know why he used the expression. Witness was quite positive that John had held his hand over Leafey's mouth. Prisoner told him that Alexander nearly fainted when burying Leafey.

Harmon Easterbee deposed that prisoner told him that he and Alexander had made away with Leafey. They hit her in the pit of the stomach and buried her back of the mill near the sandbank. Witness did not believe this and told prisoner. Prisoner did not tell him when he choked Leafey. Prisoner had a cross way of speaking, but never said anything that would lead him to suppose him capable of such a crime. The prisoner advertised in the Globe for Alexander. The prisoner usually had a revolver.

Mrs. Ann Easterbee said she thought as much of Leafey as of her own child, she was so kind and good. Alexander stayed one night at her place; that was the night before he went away. He said Leafey had gone on a visit to her folks for a few days. He said nothing about going to leave her. Alexander and the prisoner slept together that night. Alexander's stove looked as if cloth had been burned in it. She never said she hated Leafey and wished her out of the way.

The jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against Alexander Easterbee and John Easterbee in causing the death of Leafey Easterbee in the fall of 1884, in the Township of Pelham, county of Welland. The neighborhood has been thoroughly horrified at the revelations made at the sitting of the inquest and the strongest possible feeling is expressed against the criminals now in custody.

Shooting at Granite Creek.

The first crime committed at the new mines in the Similkameen country, occurred on Wednesday, when a man named James Newland was shot and slightly wounded by another man, name unknown. The general character of the men on Granite Creek is good, and up to the present time there has been no lawlessness. Particulars of the shooting have not yet arrived, but it is very probable the culprit has been arrested and that he will in due time be severely punished. It has hitherto been our boast that in the remotest mining camps in this province, life and property were just as secure as at the capital, a wholesome fear of Judge Begbie and his associates having pervaded those lawlessly disposed.

Another Extradition Case.

Andrew Reid is the name of a prisoner in the city jail, detained for some days on a charge of vagrancy. The police have known for a week or more that Reid was wanted on the other side, as they had information to the effect that he was an escaped convict from the Washington Territory penitentiary, and they shadowed him for several days. Officer Lindsay arrested the prisoner a few days ago, and a charge of vagrancy was preferred more with the object of holding him than getting a conviction. We understand Col. Stevens, U. S. Consul, has instructed Messrs. Davie & Pooley to apply for his extradition. The evidence on which the application will be made was in the hands of the Attorney-General to-day.

The Marquis de Mores.

The Marquis de Mores, a Frenchman who is heavily engaged in stock-raising in the bad lands of Dakota, and whose name will be familiar to recent travelers over the Northern Pacific, has been tried and acquitted on a charge of murder. A couple of years ago, in self-protection, he shot a cowboy, and the trial has only recently been held. The wife of the Marquis is a New York lady, and a pet with the cowboys, who admire her skill with the rifle and the grace with which she sits in a saddle when hunting antelope. The residence of the Marquis is at Mandan, where the Northern Pacific crosses the Little Missouri.

A Bad Piece of Road.

The new piece of wagon road near Parson's Bridge is at present in an almost impassable condition. The track of the E. & N. R., for about a quarter of a mile, runs over the old road way, and the new road, moved a short distance to one side, has been constructed and graveled in a cheap and unserviceable manner. Wheels go down to the hubs, and might go farther were it not for the bottoms of the vehicles. Parties who drove over it yesterday say that the recent rains have left it in a wretched condition. The responsible party should have it repaired at once.

Ordination of a Deacon.

After morning prayer in Christ Church Cathedral to-day, and an excellent sermon from Archdeacon Scriven upon the office and duties of a Deacon, the Lord Bishop of Columbia admitted to the Diaconate Mr. C. W. Gregory. The candidate was presented by the Archdeacon, the examining Chaplain, and was ordained according to the prescribed ritual of the Church of England. The Rev. Mr. Gregory is stationed at South Saanich, where he has already done good work as a lay reader, and is highly esteemed by his parishioners.

The London House.

Messrs. Shears & Page of the London House are now receiving their fall and winter goods. These have been selected expressly for this market in the leading marts of Great Britain, the continent and America, and will be found not only of excellent quality and reasonable in price, but likewise of the very latest designs. Their establishment is well worthy the name of the "London House" for in it will be found all kinds of goods suitable for every taste and certain to please the most fastidious.

The Vice Regal Party.

The vice regal party will comprise His Excellency the Governor-General, Lord Melgund, Hon. Mr. Anson and Messrs. Hope and Stratter.

Misses and Children's Autumn and Winter Mantles, 20 to 40 inches long, from $1 25 each, at the CITY HOUSE.

THE PENITENTIARY.

Official Visit Made Thereto by Mr. J. G. Moylan, Dominion Inspector.

For the past two weeks Mr. J. G. Moylan, inspector of Dominion penitentiaries, has been inspecting the New Westminster institution. Seven years ago when Mr. Moylan visited the penitentiary, shortly after its completion, the grounds were in a deplorable condition with standing burnt timber, fallen logs and a growth of underbrush. He could scarcely realize the vast change that had taken place. He is pleased with the work accomplished by Warden McBride, and the manner in which he and his deputy and officers have administered the affairs of the prison. It is evident additional cell room will be necessary ere long, and it is understood recommendations in that direction will be made by Mr. Moylan. Alterations in the grounds will likewise receive the attention of the department. The ravine adjacent to the building affords easy means of escape by convicts as the timber growth is of such a density that once a prisoner gets into the brush his detection is difficult. It is a matter of regret that the old government building in which former governors of the province resided, and lately occupied by officials in connection with the department of railways has been allowed to become such a wreck as it now is. With no one to care for the building, the doors all broken enabling cattle and other animals to make it their rendezvous, it has almost been reduced to a pile, good only for the torch. By a judicious expenditure of a moderate sum it could be converted into a comfortable residence for the Warden, who then could reside within the grounds of the penitentiary as other Wardens are doing. The site is a charming one and possesses much about it that is dear to many a British Columbian. It is to be hoped the government will see its way to make the change suggested.

Mr. Moylan is pleased with the climate, notes with satisfaction the substantial progress the country is making, Victoria in particular. He is hopeful of a bright future for the province of the setting sun. On Thursday he leaves by the Mexico for San Francisco. A visit will be made by him to the California State prison at San Quentin; he will then proceed to Manitoba where he will inspect the Stony mountain prison. He carries back with him many souvenirs of his visit, amongst others being an assortment of vegetables.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. M. M. English was a passenger by the Western Slope this morning.

Mr. B. W. Pearse went to Nanaimo by the Amelia this morning.

Mr. C. Strouss, of the firm of C. Strouss & Co, arrived in the city to-day from England.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Barnard, M. P., are on a visit to Kamloops and are guests of Mr. Speaker Mara.

Col. Stevens returned this morning from a visit to Port Townsend, Seattle and Port Angeles.

A. Neppack, Portland; B. Browne and P. Pillur, San Francisco, are at the Driard.

Messrs. Myers of Nanaimo, Pilot Morrison, and Al. Briggs were passengers by the Amelia this morning.

Chas. H. Bell, who has been employed on the C. P. R. near Kamloops, left this morning on a visit to his native land, Ireland.

Sir Michael Culme-Seymour went up to the mainland on the Western Slope this morning. It is understood he goes as far as Kamloops.

P. O. Inspector Murphy, of Salem, Or., arrived in the city to-day, and will take charge of the prisoner Hibbs, returning most likely to-morrow. Hibbs will probably be taken to the Boise City penitentiary.

The Geo. E. Starr brought the following passengers: H Cameron, McPhee, Neppach, A Strouss, Wm Mooney, wife and 3 children, D H Hayward, J G Murphy, D W Church, Butler, O F Cosper, Hill, Dixon, J Anderson, B Smith, C Wilson, H Dougla, J Clark, A Vinsoir, H Hanson, W Walsh, Delaney, W Leonard, J B Steward.

MARINE NOTES.

The steamer Wellington and ship W. H. Macey sailed from San Francisco for Nanaimo on Saturday last.

The tug Alexander towed the ship Babcock to sea yesterday from Nanaimo, bound to 'Frisco.

Capt. McFee, of the English ship Great Victoria, now in San Francisco, arrived here to-day by the Geo. E. Starr. He will go to Burrard Inlet to-morrow to look after the bark Robert Kerr, which was damaged by striking on San Juan while being towed to the inlet.

The Pacific Mail Company has given official notice through the eastern papers that it will discontinue its service between San Francisco, Auckland and Sydney with the following departures: From San Francisco October 24th, Sydney November 5th, and Auckland November 10, 1885.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

Louis Priviot, drunk; fined $5 or one week.

Gilbert Wall, using threatening language to Joseph Wiley; Bound over to keep the peace for six months—himself in $25, and one surety in $25.

John O'Brien, drunk; fined $5 or one week.

James Walsh, on remand, charged with vagrancy; remanded until to-morrow.

Andrew Reid, held on a charge of vagrancy; remanded until Thursday.

Clamoring for His Life.

A Winnipeg dispatch of the 18th says information has been received from Dewdney, lieutenant-governor of the Northwest Territories, that Riel has been indefinitely respited. The lieutenant governor got instructions from Ottawa not to proceed with the hanging until further orders. There is great excitement among the French here and corresponding chagrin among the English, who clamor for Riel's life.

Very Good News.

The Whatcom Reveille is informed that not less than two hundred Chinamen have crossed the boundary line from British Columbia to that county, at or near Blaine, during the past two months, and the number is constantly increasing. It is believed that vast quantities of opium is smuggled through at the same time. New acquisitions are being made to the den in that city every night. While sympathizing with the Whatcomers, our people cannot do otherwise than congratulate themselves at this news.

JERSEYS! JERSEYS!

One hundred and fifty Jerseys received to-day at the White House. Hutcheson, Young & Co.

The Similkameen Mines.

The news from the Similkameen mining camp continues encouraging. The proportion of those who have gone in and returned disappointed is very small indeed. Nearly all remain, and while only a few have struck it rich, a large number are taking out good pay, while the minority only are doing little or nothing. The district is a large one, and many places yet remain to be prospected. A new creek, called Bear, about nineteen miles from Allison's, is attracting attention. The season's operations will soon close, when mining operations will cease until the spring. Many of the miners will winter at the mines, and next summer lively times, recalling memories of Williams Creek in its palmy days, are confidently expected by the owners of claims on Granite Creek.

A Good Showing.

The earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for 1884 were $3,213,226; for 1885 they were $5,061,465, an increase of $1,848,239. The earnings of the other Northwestern lines for the same period were as follows: Northern Pacific, 1884, $8,040,626; 1885, $6,582,3339; decrease $1,458,287. Chicago and Northwestern, 1884, $14,672,886; 1885, $14,682,489; increase $9603. Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, 1884, $14,202,080; 1885, $14,276,000; increase $73,914. Denver and Rio Grande, 1884, $3,789,832; 1885, $4,226,486; increase $436,654.

A Washington Territory Convict.

The man Andrew Reid, referred to elsewhere, was this afternoon re-arrested at the jail on a warrant issued by Chief Justice Begbie. His real name is Frank Angelo or Angelos. He was convicted and sentenced to the Washington Territory penitentiary for an assault with intent to commit murder, and after having served about one year, escaped and made his way to this city. His extradition will be applied for.

Larceny at Esquimalt.

A man named John McGowan, a stranger to Esquimalt went through Mr. Joseph Miller's hotel during the night time, about a week ago, and stole a watch from the occupant of one room and $9.90 from another. Constable Campbell arrested the thief, and on Monday before Mr. Fisher, the crime was proved against him. The magistrate give him six months for the robbery and three months for carrying a revolver.

Demoralized as Usual.

The telegraph wires between Victoria and Portland are demoralized again. There is some excuse during the winter season and when bush fires are prevalent in the summer, for a continuance of this chronic condition of things, but just now, when everything is favorable, the breaks would seem to be the result of pure cussedness or gross carelessness on the part of the companies and the government that own the lines.

A fight occurred last night at the Ship Inn, Esquimalt, in which several men and women took a hand. A slung-shot was used by one of the gang, and at least one of the participants is suffering from the effects of the murderous weapon. The slung-shot was thrown away, and afterwards was picked up on Mr. Keeler's premises. Several arrests are likely to follow.

A Game at Seattle.

The championship game of base ball, played Saturday last at Seattle, between the Reds, and Newcastles, resulted in a tie, after ten innings had been played, each side scoring 20 runs. As darkness then came on, and all the blanks in the score book were filled, the game was decided a tie. The scorer was the most fatigued man on the ground.

The Seattle Slugging Match.

The slugging contest between Prof. Young Dutchey and Phil Dawe, at Seattle, on Saturday night was finished in three rounds Dutchey being whipped. There was more wrestling than boxing, and the affair was generally disappointing. Dutchey's arm was sprained.

The Warrior's Trip.

Sir Fred Middleton will accompany Sir Adolphe Caron on the latter's official tour as Minister of Militia. They will visit British Columbia via San Francisco and return by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Attempted Desertion.

Two young man jackets were arrested to-day by officer Hooson, on board the Geo. E. Starr, just before the steamer left for the Sound. They were dressed in blue overalls, and looked as unlike man-of-war's men as two navvies.

—Mr. J. B. Leighton's new hotel at Granite creek will be a large building.

—Mr. W. T. Leftwich of Kamloops has returned from the Similkameen mines, where he has secured a considerable interest. He intends opening a restaurant at the mines.

King Tye Company.

With reference to the special notice in to-day's Colonist signed King Tye & Co., I would beg to inform the trade and public generally that I was not, as stated, discharged from business connected with that firm.

In May, 1884, I became manager in this firm, and up to yesterday, when I tendered my resignation. It is easy to see that all transactions made by me personally, or under my signature as representative of the firm, must be valid, and for which King Tye Co. are responsible.

The sole cause of my resignation was a disagreement with my only resident partner.
